Romania

Justice & Environment (J&E), an association of public interest environmental law organizations in the EU held two successive seminars on Environmental Impact Assessment regulation and practice between 30 November – 2 December and 2 – 4 December in Sinaia, Romania.

The seminars focused on environmental impact assessment legislation and its relation to the Aarhus Convention. The participants were public clerks from environmental authorities, judges, lawyers, representatives of protected nature conservation areas' administration, and NGOs.

The seminar was organized by Justice & Environment and its member organization in Romania, Center for Legal Resources. The events were funded by the NGO Operational Grant of the EU's LIFE+ program.

Catalina Radulescu, member of the Executive Committee of J&E representing Romania declared:

“This series of events was a very important occasion to discuss issues regarding EIA implementation in Romania, Hungary and in the entire European Union. I am sure that the participants left with an enhanced knowledge and a better understanding of what makes EIA one of the most important legal tools of protection in environmental law.”
